City council to decide on new paper plant agreement

■ New language in development agreement may pave way for accord between city and paper plant backers.

By David Weller

MacMillan-Bloedel and the city of West Sacramento have come up with alternative language to provisions regarding steam plumes and sludge recyclig in a proposed development agreement which could bring a giant paper recycling plant to West Sacramento.

When city staff approached the board in February with the proposed agreement, the document contained language which would require MacMillan-Bloedel to reduce visible steam plumes and pursue means of recycling the solid waste only when alternative technologies become available, and when the owner agrees with the city manager that such changes are economically feasible.

The steam plume and sludge provisions were called into question by council members when the agreement was presented to the board by staff in February. New language in the agreement holds the developer to more objective rules for determining when they must make those changes. The agreement, however, appears not to require the developer to make any additional expenditures in order to purchase new steam plume or sludge recyling technologies.

Under the new language, MacMillan-Bloedel must replace steam plume equipment when the initial equipment has been fully depreciated for tax purpsoses, alternate equipment beccomes available which will reduce steam plume density by half, and the plant is earning as much return on the company's capital investment as MacMillan Bloedel is earning as a whole.

Additionally, the new equipment must be judged to produce a net rate of return on invested capital "equal to or greater than that of MacMillan Bloedel as a whole," according to the proposed agreement.

In regard to sludge recycling, the city manager and the recycling company must agree that any new sludge recycling methods developed will be less expensive and more desireable to the company than disposal at the local landfill.

Efforts are still under way to get the plant's approved by the state water board. Samples taken from a similar plant in Germany are currently being tested by Davis based environmental consulting firm Larry Walker and Associates.

According to state water inspector Richard McHenry, the water samples have to pass types of limits. One is measured at the end of the discharge pipe, and the other is measured somewhere in the stream.

Exactly how far into the stream measurements can be taken depends on several variables, including the diluding effects of the river, which metals or organic compounds are part of the discharge, and the likely impacts on fish and other living things. Immediate toxicity is measured at the end of the discharge pipe, and long term effects are measured in the stream.

According to city officials, initial tests by the consulting firm indicate that toxic levels measured in the stream are more likely to pass state limits than toxic levels measured at the pipe.

Tripped up by a puddle

A Bay Area college student was left unscathed following this accident Friday afternoon, when his pickup truck "hit a large puddle" during a storm and spun out of control. The accident took place on U.S. 50 eastbound near Enterprise Blvd. The driver was wearing his seatbelt at the time of the accident.

Long-awaited Southport plan heads for review

By Steve Marschke

West Sacramento officials will conduct a public workshop on the Southport Framework Plan on Thursday, March 16 at 7 p.m. in the city council chambers, 2101 Stone Blvd.

The plan is intended to guide future development of Southport -- West Sacramento's southern half -- including an estimated 14,050 residential units, 1.7 million square feet of commercial development, 2.1 million square feet of office/business park uses, 7.6 million square feet of industrial uses, 544 acres of public and quasi-public uses, and 915 acres of parks and open space at buildout.

The 7,120 acre south of the barge canal is largely undeveloped at present. An estimated 30,000 people will live there if planned development is completed.

According to city officials, the Southport Framework Plan is designed as a refinement of the city's general plan and to "encourage a development pattern that is an alternative to suburban sprawl." The plan calls for a series of villages, each with its own schools, parks and local commercial ser-

Local ammonia plant controversy eases

By David Weller

Four years after its request to expand its fertilizer plant operations sparked vocal protests from a local community activist group, Unocal is quietly declining to push the issue forward.

"We haven't cancelled our application with the city, but due to the economics of the project, the company had a change of focus," said Superintendent of Terminals Steven Funk.

The company had wanted to expand its operations in West Sacramento to take up the slack from a plant closing in Brea. Instead the company purchased a Chevron plant in Washington to move its former Southern California fertilizer operations to.

The concerns of the community group, Quality Urbanization and Development (QUOD), stemmed from fears of the dangerous nature of the ammonia and urea being used and stored at the facility. In a unlikely event of a worst case accident, ammonia leaking into the air could be lethal.

By all accounts from government officials who oversee the hazardous materials operations at the plant, Unocal has a history of responsible reporting of problems at the plant as well as involvement in community safety programs.

"They are a good corporate citizen, the fact that they don't cover things up indicates that," said Bill Summers, hazardous materials specialist for the West Sacramento fire department.

According to Summers, the plant has a small accidental release of ammonia vapors a few times every year. They always notify the fire department immediately. In addition, the company sponsors a local fire fighter to be trained in hazardous materials handling once each year.

In the 17 year history of the plant, injuries have been reported only once. In June of 1990, some employees at Macy's warehouse next to the plant were hit with ammonia fumes while they were being evacuated from the warehouse. Two employees were sent home sick. Nobody was hospitalized.

Since that incident, the company has added a valve and flare system which allows vaporized ammonia to escape when certain levels of pressure are reached. The escaping gas is then burned before it reaches the atmosphere.

Even with redundant safety systems, occasionally small releases occur. The smell of ammonia is so strong, however, that people in the area are generally aware that there is something in the air long before toxic levels are reached.

At the Unocal refinery in the east bay area, leaks of toxic substances into the atmosphere in August of 1994 were blamed for significant health problems in neighboring towns. The company is being accused allowing a toxic substance to leak from a damaged smokestack for several days, while reporting to county officials that the problem was not hazardous, according to reports in the Sacramento Bee.

Funk declined to comment about the problems at the refinery, except to say that it is run by a different division of Unocal, and that he knows no more about it than he has read in newspaper accounts.

School loses its top

By David Weller

Bryte Elementary School lost a third of the roof from one of its buildings to Friday afternoon's storm. Fortunately, because Bryte is a year round school, it was not in session at the time. No one was hurt.

"We had people working out there half a day to get the building covered," said Lonnie Poindexter, Director of Maintenance for the district.

Through their fast work, district personnel managed to keep most of the materials in the classroom from being destroyed by water. They are still hoping the carpets can be saved.

The school board voted to allocate $24,800 for repairs Tuesday night, which includes $6,000 for the price of carpeting.

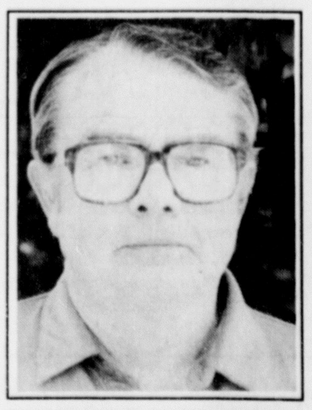
The next city council election will be held in 1996.



Market robbed by gunman

By Steve Marschke

A West Capitol Ave. market was robbed at gunpoint Saturday, and police are looking for the suspect, who made off with an entire cash register and an undetermined amount of cash. The incident occurred at the Capitol Grocery Plus, located at Maple and West Capitol.

"On Saturday night at about 5:35 p.m., a guy went into the store, pointed a gun at the clerk and pushed her outside the store, and carried away the entire cash register," said Det. Tom Bowler of the West Sacramento Police Department.

The man left in a vehicle which police believe they later recovered. The vehicle had license plates from the state of Kansas.

The suspect's identity is still not known.

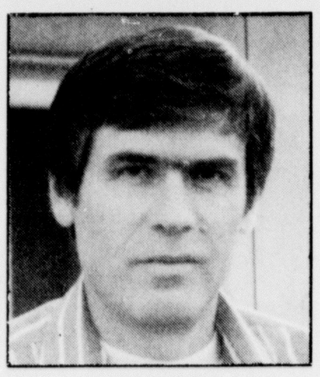
My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Weekend before last I spent a few hours visiting with two of my oldest friends, Bobby Watts and Guyburt Pierce. The three of us attended local schools together and graduated from James Marshall High way back in 1965. Bobby was (and still is) one of the funniest people I've ever been around and Guyburt knows few equals as a straight-man. Spending time with them always involves a lot of reminiscing and laughing, and this time was no different -- except all three of our daughters (who are the same age) also happened to be in the room.

"So, Daryl, what are you doing later tonight?" Bobby asked me as all six of us -- seven, actually, counting Guyburt's wife, Jan -- sat around talking.

"Oh, I don't know," I said, "but I think my wife has rented a movie to watch."

"But you can do that any old time," said Bobby, who unlike Guyburt and me, is single. "What say the two of us jump into my car and go out on the town for a few hours -- you know -- just like we used to do when we were kids?"

"Dad!" immediately interrupted Bobby's daughter, Kelly, "don't be asking Daryl to do things like that."

"Why not?" asked her father.

"Because he's married!"

"That doesn't mean he's dead," interjected Guyburt in my defense.

"Oh yes it does," said Jan with a laugh which quickly spread around the room.

"Where were you thinking of going?" I bravely asked Bobby.

"Oh, I don't know," he answered with a sly grin obviously aimed at trying to further upset his daughter, "how about one of those strip joints downtown?"

"Dad," yelled Kelly, "now stop that!"

Anyway, as the conversation continued, it became quite clear that our three sweet young daughters -- with solid support from Jan -- thought that it was high time that all men -- especially really ancient ones like me, Bobby and Guyburt -- should immediately and forever stop trying to think up activities to do which didn't include one's significant other.

"Why do men even bother to get married if they still want to go out with the boys?" Guyburt's daughter, Amy, asked my daughter, Carrie.

"Who needs a man in their life all the time, anyway?" asked Carrie.

"Yeah," added Kelly, "I'm trying to get into medical school. I need a man around all the time about as much as I need a hole in my head."

"I think what all men really need to do is read Men Are From Mars, Women Are From Venus," suggested Jan.

"What's that?" I asked.

"It's this new book absolutely everyone is reading that explains how differently men and women think about things," explained Carrie.

"Really?" I said.

"You can take my copy home with you if you want, Daryl" volunteered Jan with a big smile, obviously convinced that I definitely needed to read it.

John Gray's Men Are From Mars, Women Are From Venus turned out to have a number of very interesting insights concerning the way men and women interact. For instance, he says that "A man's sense of self is defined through his ability to achieve results, and to offer a man unsolicited advice is to presume that he doesn't know what to do or that he can't do it on his own." On the other hand, "A woman's sense of self is defined through her feelings and the quality of her relationships." He also says "Men are motivated and empowered when they feel needed, while women are motivated and empowered when they feel cherished." Above all, he says we need to remember that "men need to receive caring, understanding, respect, devotion, validation and reassurance, while women need to receive trust, acceptance, appreciation, admiration, approval and encouragement."

My favorite part of the book, however, was definitely the section entitled, "101 Ways To Score Points With A Woman." Here are just a few examples: (#23) Let her know when you are planning to take a nap or leave; (#33) Wash before having sex or put on a cologne if she likes that; (#38) Don't flick the remote control to different channels when she is watching TV with you; (#40) When holding hands don't let your hand go limp; and my personal favorite, (#99) Eat lightly on romantic occasions so that you don't become stuffed and tired later.

Oh, yes, and here are just a few of the "Ways To Score Points With A Man" that I've just finished compiling: Always say 'please' when you are screaming at your husband to pick up his clothes, take out the trash, wash the dog, and do the yard work; Always gently explain to your husband that it's really 'nothing personal' later that evening when you refuse to have sex with him because he forgot to pick up his clothes, take out the trash, wash the dog and do the yard work; Tell all your girlfriends right up front that they're not supposed to be repeating the fact that your husband is an uncaring, insensitive, lazy slob who needs a mother, not a wife; and finally, when you're just moments away from being rolled into the delivery room to experience the beautiful miracle of childbirth, do not dig your fingernails into your husband's arm and scream, "Don't you ever, ever do this to me again!"

Two narrow, one-match wins mark open of tennis season

From David Brooks
Tennis Coach
River City High School

In between the recent thunderstorms, the 1995 River City High School Tennis Team opened its season in impressive style. A road trip to Sutter Creek to take on Amador High School produced a narrow one-match victory as did a home contest against Highlands High School.

At Amador, the Raiders were led by the brother-sister mixed doubles team of Peter and Mirthala Santizo, who won convincingly 6-2, 6-1. A pair of girls doubles teams also won matches for R.C., Bethany Monroe and Khonthavy Phouanglasy, by a score of 6-3, 6-3; and Muang Saeteurn and Douangchanh Lattasima, in an 8-game pro set, 8-4. In the home opener against Highlands, the Santizos came through again with another 6-2, 6-1 victory and Monroe/Phouanglasy breezed 6-1, 6-1. In boys doubles, rookies Julio Gomez and Chris Cardoza put up a tough fight in their first varsity match, losing to a more experienced Highlands pair, 1-6, 5-7. In the singles matches, Ty Fisher and Bounthay Bouttavong both started strongly but faded late in a couple of long three-setters, with Fisher finishing 6-4, 3-6, 3-6; Bouttavong, 6-2, 6-7 (1-7), 3-6. On the girls' side however, the story was quite different. Quick, decisive victories came from #1 Hoang Truong, 6-2, 6-1, and #2, Chanthaphone Inthirath, 6-0, 6-0.

The Raiders' toughest preseason match came against former Superior California Athletic League rival Vanden. After defeating the Vikings twice by identical 5 to 2 scores in 1994 S.C.A.L. contests, R.C. came up one match short this time, losing 4 to 3. Inthirath remained undefeated with a 6-2, 6-2 win, as did the Monroe/Phouanglasy girls doubles team with their 7-5, 6-0 victory. The third Raider win came at the #1 girls singles position, where Truong pulled away at the end of a two-and-a-half hour battle in the young season's best match to date, 7-6 (7-4), 4-6, 6-4.

The rains postponed matches against Argonaut and Dixon, as the 2 and 1 Raiders prepare to open Golden Empire League play against powerful Bear River and Lindhurst. This year's squad has a school-record 29 members, including 11 returnees from 1994. Come out and support them in their next home match on Thursday, March 23, at 3 p.m. against Colfax.

The Sacramento Kings (30-30) are fighting for the last playoff spot with the Denver Nuggets (29-32) and for the first time since the 1985-86 season the Kings have won 30 games!!

The Kings had lost 10 of their previous 11 games until Sunday's 105-93 victory in Los Angeles over the Clippers (13-50).

The Kings trail Portland by 3 games and are heading into their easier part of the schedule. The Kings have seen their edge over Denver dwindle from 8 1/2 games to 1 1/2 games in three weeks.

Dallas (22-36) comes to town on Tuesday, then the Kings travel to Denver (6 p.m. on Channel 31) on Thursday and return on Friday to face their cross-town rival, the Golden State Warriors (19-41).

On Sunday, the Kings fly to L.A. to play the Lakers (37-23), then come home on Monday to play Denver again in a must-win game! This is what NBA basketball is all about. Playoff fever!!

Baseball is still on STRIKE!! But I predict that the strike will be settled this weekend!! If they don't resolve the dispute this week, the owners will be forced to continue with their plans to use replacement players on Opening Day!!

The 49ers are back in the news, signing 55 year old George Seifert to a two-year extension guaranteeing Seifert $4.3 million over the 1995-97 season, an average of $1.4 million, and making him the second-highest paid coach in the NFL. Don Shula of the Dolphins is the highest paid coach, making $1.6 million per year. Also, the expansion teams Jacksonville Jaguars and Carolina Panthers are making the NFL owners very nervous by signing free agent players. The 49ers had sought ex-Jets defensive end Jeff Lageman for a three-year package worth $4 million but Lageman signed a three-year deal with Jacksonville for $5.45 million. Also, Ricky Watters is entertaining a $5 million a year offer from the Eagles.

The 49ers have stated they will not match that offer, so Watters may jump ship.

The NCAA Tournament gets started on Thursday as the 64 teams begin March madness. The top seeds are UCLA, Kentucky, Kansas and Wake Forest. The Big Dance final is set for April 3rd in Seattle.

See ya next week!!

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Southport plan will be crucial for city's future

West Sacramento has a self-professed goal of becoming the "premier city" of the Central Valley, which is fine, although this slogan on our city stationery probably draws more chuckles than nods of respect at this stage. After all, you gain respect by actions and progress, and not by ambitious slogans.

But if West Sacramento really wants to achieve this goal, it will have to do two key things right:

One is the development of the riverfront area, including the "Triangle" area between the freeway and Tower Bridge, and adjacent areas. A good plan is in place for much of this property, including mixed-use residential (apartment), commercial and recreational acreage.

The other is proper development of Southport, the city's southern half (which is virtually an island, surrounded on three sides by the Sacramento River and deep water shipping canal). It will not be good enough merely to create another Elk Grove or Natomas, full of respectable, commuter-subdivisions but bland and undistinguished in any way, lacking true "neighborhood" character.

Much of West Sacramento is blighted. New development which aspires to be mediocre won't fix the city's image, stature or pocketbook. But high-quality development of the riverfront and Southport will speed the revitalization of West Capitol Avenue and much of the rest of the city, providing the only real solution to the business district's problems of drug addicts, prostitutes and urban blight. They will also start a chain reaction improving the city's schools.

So Southport must be better than mediocre. Its plan must be distinct and visionary, and yet must still "pencil out" so that the economics of the real world will allow development to take place.

The Southport Framework Plan -- a controversial process begun with high hopes in 1990 -- is attempting to meet that objective.

Tomorrow, the public is invited to help judge whether the process is on the right track. Final city approval of the new plan is expected in May, and the results of the plan will have a profound effect on the city's future.

Defending pastors

I was concerned about the recent article that was written about a quote a pastor made in a past article.

The pastor was right in his statement. The pastor was not being judgmental about cults, and to be part of a committee would be against his beliefs.

There is a standard a Christian lives by, it happens to be the Bible. The Bible reveals the truth about God, the Bible truly explains the origin of man, points out the only way to salvation and Eternal Life. Last but not least the age old problem of sin and suffering. So as you can clearly see, God made the rules. Not a so called fundamentalist Pastor...the Pastor is just obeying God.

Mr. Jones, Mr. Koresh may of claimed Christianity but scriptures say differently, MATT 8 vs 23 says I will declare I never knew you depart from me you who practice lawlessness..So to call yourself a christian is a great honor. Apostle Paul said Be diligent to present yourself approved to God a worker who does not need to be ashamed rightly dividing the truth. I was real concerned about the big bold print Religious Intolerance. To say Christians are bigoted for there beliefs is wrong. Boy O Boy look what they said and did to Jesus for speaking the truth. What is this world coming to...Yes believe it or not Jesus.

(Second letter from same author):

A reply to Joseph Muse recent letter. Did we read the same article? Because Rev. Templin tried to explain the difference between, the historical Christian faith and other groups, who operate under the guise of Christian faith.

I don't believe Rev. Templin was judging Mormans. He was simply explaining facts. The Bible does talk about judgement day. For some odd reason I don't think, it will be Rev. Templin's assigned job from God.

Hwy. 50

At the March 8 meeting, City Council discussed the "modernization" of the Harbor Blvd. bridge over Business 80/U.S. 50. Plan included building highway improvements so close the nearby hotel so as to make same unsafe, thus city (taxpayers) may eventually pay owners $7 or $8 million for just this property. Even if same goes through, it will have a "D" rating at best, considering maybe half the new traffic expected from the Industrial Bridge when completed in maybe 2 years.

Like the CalTrans proposal to upgrade the Pioneer Bridge from its present "F" rating to a "D" rating, CalTrans' proposal for the update of the Harbor Blvd. Bridge is too expensive for the improvement we will be getting. Just as another bridge over the Sacramento River makes more sense, another bridge over Business 80/U.S. 50 does likewise. The patchwork proposals do not "look far enough ahead." Traffic problems of both bridges are in part attributable to the longer truck problem: Longer trailers prevent drivers from making right turns from the right lane (from 2-lane onto 2-lane roads); likewise, such longer trucks need 2 lanes to go where the shorter trucks occupied one lane; hence, the slower traffic and the "F" ratings.

Most new development is welcomed as new business, new jobs and new local revenues. But when the new means the destruction of too much of what is presently okay, rethinking is in order. It is hard to believe that facing the inevitable -- building the new bridges -- sooner would not make more sense. To postpone same means we not only throw away monies for proposed improvements, but to delay the 2 new bridges inevitably means tearing out more newer development where little or none now exists. The newer bridges would provide for the longer trucks and, if built sooner, would reduce traffic on existing bridges to very acceptable levels. Surely CalTrans' engineers can figure out changes for this, such as making sure the new bridge over Business 80/U.S. 50 accommodates the truck traffic from the U.S. Postal distribution headquarters on Industrial Blvd. -- and whatever else is projected for the buildout future.

Waste not; patch not; just build the right thing sooner and save much money in so doing.

We at Golden State Middle School are proud of our students and their desire to strive for excellence. On May 9, we will leave for Washington, D.C. This unique trip will offer the students the opportunity to explore our nation's capital and visit the historical sights that founded this great nation. From the early settlement of Jamestown to historic Williamsburg, students will be involved in history and the workings of our government.

The cost of the five-day, four-night trip is $854 per student. This includes airfare, lodging, all meals, all sightseeing and ground transportation, health, accident and liability insurance and curriculum materials.

To make this trip possible we need your help. Although students are planning various fundraisers, we are also seeking sponsors from various businesses, groups and organizations. I hope that you are able to help with our adventure by sponsoring one or more of our students. Students may be sponsored in any amount from $25 to the total cost. We appreciate any assistance.

Thank you in advance for any support you may be able to give us for our "ultimate field trip," the Earth Shuttle.

Baseball fields

In responding to the remarks regarding the use of the River City baseball fields and the involvement of the City of West Sacramento and the Washington Unified School District the following remarks should be expressed.

Both groups are dedicated to providing the youth of this community with an opportunity to be involved in sports activities. Both the school district and the city have reached the conclusion that in order for the American Legion, West Sacramento Senior League and Washington Senior League baseball teams to participate during the 1995 season fields must be available. The two groups are working to construct a new senior league field at Golden State.

The decision was made to hold off on the proposed River City playfield improvements until the conclusion of the 1995 baseball season. Furthermore, the city and the school district have combined forces to ensure that all of the gopher problems that did occur at several of the school/city facilities have been dealt with, especially at River City.

In conclusion, the Washington Unified School District and the City of West Sacramento are committed to providing the residents of this community with quality facilities and programs. The criticism expressed in the recent letter to the editor is unfounded.

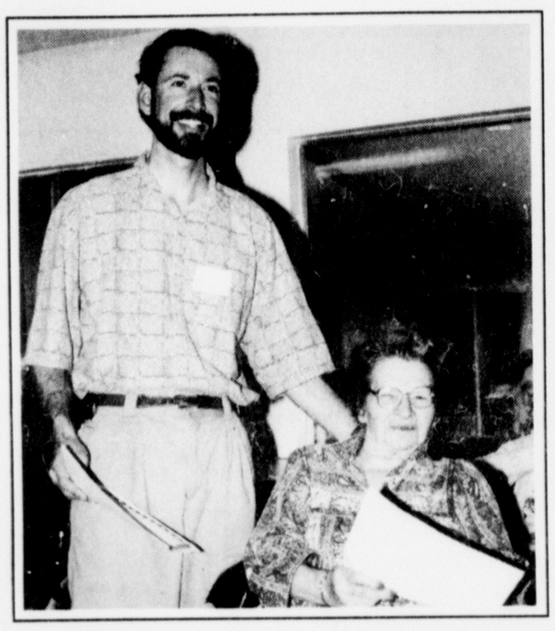
Rocking and rolling

Overall winners Mertis Walsh (second place) Don Quinton (first place) and Ruth Worley (third place), the leading fundraisers in the "Rock and Roll-athon."



Somerset director Bill Hunt with award-winner Agnes Blumberg, who rocked for 5 1/2 hours.

Residents of the Somerset Convalescent Hospital raised over $500 for local charity last Wednesday and Thursday -- and pledges are still coming in.

Under the leadership of activities director Marti Condos, residents at the center participated in a "Rock and Roll-athon," during which they either rocked in rocking chairs, rolled their wheelchairs, or walked for distance and time.

In return, they solicited pledges, and the winning fundraisers were honored at the center last week.

Proceeds will be donated to River City High School and the local Elderly Nutrition Center.

Winner Don Quinton performed 40 laps down a long hallway.

The event was the fourth annual for the seniors, and organizer Marti Condos said the event is "getting better every year."

New officers for YCSBA

From Elizabeth Zemmels, Ed.D.
Yolo County Superintendent of Schools

The Yolo County School Boards Association (YCSBA) has reorganized and elected new officers for the 1995 year. Rebekah Stromgren, a member of the Yolo County Board of Education, is now at the helm.

The county school boards association is composed of board members from the Davis, Esparto, Washington, Winters, and Woodland school districts, the County Office of Education, and the Los Rios and Yuba Community College district boards. Nordstrom Johnson, former trustee of the Yuba Community College District Board of Education, is past-president of YCSBA.

Rebekah Stromgren has served as a representative of the Yolo County Board of Education since 1982. She has been a member of the Yolo County Board of Education since 1980 and served as a member of the Davis JUSD Board of Education for 18 years.

"The YCSBA Executive Board has identified three priorities for collaboration in 1995," said Stromgren, the new president. "They are: (1) Special education encroachment on district general funds; (2) Parcel tax and bond elections; and (3) Interest based bargaining/trends in negotiations."

Penny Kastanis, Los Rios College Board of Education, is vice president. Jay Shepherd, Winters JUSD Board of Education, is the secretary/treasurer and Stuart Knox, Washington USD Board of Education, is the program chair.

The representatives, in addition to the elected officers, are as follows: Janice Bridge (Davis), Charles E. Schaupp (Esparto), Jay Shepherd (Winters), John Benedict (Woodland), and Larry Schapiro (Yuba College). The office of the Yolo County Superintendent of Schools provides staff support for the organization.

Each year a dinner activity is planned in the spring called "Striving for Excellence," which highlights outstanding educational programs for our children in the various school districts in Yolo County. This year it will be held on May 9.

Another dinner is held in the fall and is sponsored by YCSBA in conjunction with the Association of California School Administrators. This year it will be held on October 17 and will be hosted by the Yolo County Board of Education. During this event the association recognizes, with its Golden Apple Award, the outstanding administrator and the outstanding school board member within its membership.

Our printing costs just went up.
Our mailing costs just went up.
Our subscription rates just stayed the same.

Prices for newsprint are rising, and producing this newspaper was about 15 percent more expensive than it would have been a couple of months ago. And at the same time the U.S. Postal Service raised the price of a first class stamp from 29 cents to 32 cents, it raised the rates we use to bring our subscribers their weekly copies of the News-Ledger.

It occurred to us that it might be necessary to raise subscription rates to cover these rising costs.

But we're going to try not to. There is another way. With your help, we can keep our annual subscription rate right where it is -- at the unusually low rate of $15 per year within Yolo County and $20 elsewhere.

How?

By helping to get more subscribers to the News-Ledger, you can help reduce costs for everybody. It's called the "economy of scale." It's cheaper, per person, to print and mail 5,000 copies of the News-Ledger than it is to print and mail 2,500.

In 1994, the circulation of the News-Ledger grew by over 20 percent, to nearly 3,000 actual paid copies per week. If we grow by a similar amount in 1995, we can hold your costs right where they are.

We hope you agree that West Sacramento is a better place because it has a locally owned, independent newspaper to help keep the community informed. We hope you'll help support that newspaper by encouraging a friend or neighbor to subscribe.

And, by the way, another way to support the News-Ledger is to patronize our advertisers whenever possible and to mention their ad in the News-Ledger when you visit them.

Thank you.

Please help out by giving this coupon to a non-subscribing friend who may be interested in becoming more informed about the West Sacramento community:

Police log

The items in this police log are taken from the department's incident report, which lists calls for assistance as they occur. The facts have not been verified through investigation or trial, and for that reason, names or precise addresses are not generally given here.

March 8, 1:55 a.m.

A 38 year old Merkley Ave. man was arrested for child abandonment for leaving his daughter in a local supermarket.

March 10, 3:45 a.m.

A local couple living together at a Pecan St. apartment argued, and the woman reportedly ran down the hallway and was struck by the man's fist in her back. An officer observed redness and swelling on her back. While the officer was taking the report, the man drove by and was arrested.

March 11, 5 a.m.

An officer recognized a vehicle as having been involved in an accident about 12:30 a.m. that night, but the 26-year old owner told the officer it had been stolen an hour and a half ago. The officer believed it "could not have been taken as described" and arrested the suspect.

March 11, 12:27 p.m.

A man came to the police station to report he had located his dog -- which had been stolen -- at a Bryte location, and wanted the police to help him recover it. He said the animal was tattooed and could be identified. When an officer arrived to meet him an hour later, the man was gone.

Annual abatement program

Property owners: weed removal begins

From the West Sacramento Fire Department

In an effort to reduce the summer fire danger due to uncontrolled week growth, the West Sacramento Fire Department's Weed Abatement Program is scheduled to begin by the end of March. Notification to owners of problem parcels is set to begin April 5. Property owners will then have thirty days to abate their property on a voluntary basis. If at the end of that thirty day period the danger still exists, a city weed abatement contractor will clean the property and owner will have the cost of the abatement added to the property's tax record. The owner will be charged at the following rate: 0 to less than 1/2 acre, $49.61; 1/2 to less than 1 acre, $66.15; 1 acre or more, $57.33; 50' fire break/linear ft., $.11; flail mowing, $63.94/hour; hand mowing and/or weed eater, $22.05/hour; compact debris removal per 1/2 yard, $11.02. An additional administrative fee of 20 percent will be added to these amounts.

All fees, with the exception of the administrative fee, are passed directly to the weed abatement contractor for his services. The City of West Sacramento receives no portion of these funds.

The fire department encourages the citizens of West Sacramento to be pro-active in their efforts to reduce the summer fire danger. For more information, call 373-5807.

vices, connected by a large "loop" parkway. The six new villages would be built around the core of development now occupied by the Arlington Oaks and Larchmont Summerfield subdivisions and their neighbors.

Among the plan's features, according to city documents:

■ Villages will encourage pedestrian and bicycle-friendly design by connecting public services at the village core to housing on the outskirts with a system of paths.

■ Trying to minimize the "garagescape" appearance of new residential development by encouraging developers to set back garages and present more of a house's living area to the street.

■ Maintaining compatible architectural standards within new development.

■ Creating a "Town Center" near the north end of Southport, creating a link with the rest of West Sacramento and drawing residents towards the city's traditional downtown business area. In this way, the plan hopes to use Southport's residents to support the West Sacramento downtown.

The planning process was begun in 1990 through a "charette" process in which four architecture/design firms were invited to sketch out their concepts for Southport. The winning firm, PBR, was heavily favored by area developers and was hired to implement the plan.

Besides Thursday's workshop, the city planning commission is scheduled to hold a hearing on the plan on April 6 or 20; the city council will hold another workshop on April 12; and the council is expected to approve the new plan in a two-step process May 10 and 17.

Sacramento plant some of the ammonia is converted into nitrogen dioxide for use in fertilizer compounds, and some is sold to be used full strength fertilizer. It is also used as an environmentally friendly alternative to freon in refrigeration units.

Huge amounts of ammonia are stored in two twenty ton refrigerated tanks at the Unocal site near the deep water channel. The fears QUOD raised over allowing the operation to expand in West Sacramento stemmed primarily from the highly dangerous nature of the large amounts of the anhydrous ammonia being stored at the facility, and being shipped out on trucks and rails every day.

In the unlikely event that a major leak were to occur, the results could be devastating. Anhydrous ammonia needs to be refrigerated to stay in liquid form. It vaporizes at 38 degrees fahrenheit.

Because ammonia vapor is twice as heavy as air, it tends to hug the ground. Anyone breathing dangerous levels of the gas would experience problems with the mucous membranes and the lungs. Strong doses are lethal.

Yolo Unite column: adults need to find the time to mentor, encourage youthful friends

By Marlene M. von Friederichs-Fitzwater, Ph.D.
Yolo County Collaborative for Healthy Children and Families

"Rug rats!" "Can't you just leave me alone for awhile. I had a bad day at work." "Go find something to do -- get out of my hair."

How often have we as overworked and stressed parents said words like these to our children? Unfortunately, adults spend a lot of time communicating, verbally and non-verbally, a desire to be away from their children. Life is often a struggle and the challenges of parenting can be overwhelming. The toll is being taken on our community's children.

In youth and teen surveys, interviews and focus groups conducted by the Yolo County Collaborative for Healthy Children and Families during a 10-month needs assessment, the number one need voiced by young people in Yolo County is "to spend more time with adults."

"Adults don't really like kids." "Adults don't think we have anything important to say. They are always putting us down." "I want to be around adults and learn how to live better in the world." "The only time my parents want me around is to do chores or go places when we are supposed to act like we are wonderful, happy family."

Over and over, young people in Yolo County echoed these and similar sentiments. Most of the adults surveyed agreed that their biggest challenge as parents was finding enough time to be with their children.

Time, however, is not the only culprit -- both parents and youth agreed that when they are together, they are often at a loss as to what to do. Some blamed this on a lack of community programs and activities for families. Others said they didn't know how to "have fun together as a family."

"When I am around my parents, we end up arguing about my hair or my clothes or my friends." "Everytime my parents want to do something, its what they want to do, not what I want to do."

The youth surveyed made a real distinction between supervision by adults and being with adults. They long for relationships with adults where they are treated with respect and valued as individuals, but they also understand the need for supervision.

They spoke almost uniformly about their need for rules, boundaries and structure. "When kids get together without adults around, we get into trouble." "We don't have any rules about what we should and shouldn't do." "People who break the law should be punished, even teens." "Teens get away with too much." "We need more police and more adults who care about what we do." Interestingly enough, not one young person of the more than 500 who responded to the survey or participated in the interviews or focus groups said their parents were too strict.

When asked what can be done to reduce violence in our communities, the majority of youth said, "The adults create the violent TV programming, the violent movies, the violent video games. You know what you have to do to stop it, but too many adults are greedy." "It starts at home with parents hitting each other and hitting on the kids. What do you expect -- kids will go out and hit on each other, too." "If adults cared, it would stop."

The bottom line for kids in Yolo County -- "we need more adults to be our friends, to help us learn how to be good adults, and to be role models."
